

With a little help from his friends ...

By DEAN JONES

BEAN CITY — When Keith Hicks woke up with a sore throat in April neither he nor his family had any reason to believe it was the beginning of a long term illness once known as French Polio, that it would eventually cost thousands of dollars and that he would have the help and prayers of a lot of friends.

The disease, now known as Gillian Barre, is a virus that started with the sore throat Keith woke up on April 27.

His mother, Mrs. Hazel Hicks, said that shortly after breakfast that Sunday morning, Keith's legs collapsed. "There were no water," Mrs. Hicks said. "Within a couple of hours he was having double vision and his speech was slurring so we rushed him to Glades General Hospital."

At Glades General, neither

Keith's doctor nor the hospital physician could diagnose the problem, so they transferred him to Good Samaritan in West Palm Beach. By the next morning, he was in the Intensive Care Unit (ICU) where he has remained ever since.

By the second day, Keith was paralyzed from the throat down; unable to move his arms or legs, his breathing done for him by a respirator and taking nourishment intravenously.

Mrs. Hicks and her husband, Arley, found the good news was that while Gillian Barre struck a savage blow, the chances of 100 percent recovery for the virus' victims are excellent.

The bad news was that the recovery was going to take 12 to 15 months, barring complications, and that a large amount of time would have to be spent in the hospital.

To complicate matters, Keith no longer came under his father's health and major medical insurance coverage. He had just been hired as a mechanic's helper in LaBelle but his insurance coverage at his place of employment wasn't due to start until May 15, leaving him between and between at the time he contracted the disease.

Mrs. Hicks said her son's hospital bills already amount to

Pahokee Council gets two windfalls

By AILSA DEWING
PAHOKEE — It was a good night for city commissioners who were presented with a check for $100,000 to meet the Department of Environmental Resources (DER) mandated repairs submitted by Widell Associates, Inc., of Fort Lauderdale. The city had only a balance of $490,000 in FmHA funds to spend with the engineering fees yet to be paid.

The error in arithmetic occurred in reporting the balance of funds approved by Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) available for renovations to the city's wastewater treatment plant.

The city accepted a bid of $579,700 to meet, Department of Environmental Resources (DER)-mandated repairs submitted by Widell Associates, Inc., of Fort Lauderdale. The city had only a balance of $490,000 in FmHA funds to spend with the engineering fees yet to be paid.

Word of the CDA improvement program was given commissioners by City Building Inspector Phelix Slonaker, who also serves as CDA liaison.

At that time Widell included three additional needs, estimated separately, which urged the city to plan for additional funds to meet an arithmetical error and that funding for major housing and street improvements totaling $5,242,000 has been budgeted by the Community Development Authority.

City due $50,000

PAHOKEE — The city is due to receive $50,000 Monday, a share of state Boat Fund Improvement Fund revenues, to install floating docks in the city marina.

That count commissioners had approved a share of the state funds, but also reported that he had been unsuccessful in locating any additional funding for the project. He said FmHA officials told them they would not have additional funds until October and that to qualify them the city would have to apply again to be eligible for a grant.

In reporting the error to commissioners, J.R. Sloane, consulting engineer, requested the city to add approval for the chemical feed system.

The alternatives included a limestone silo, clarifier, and lime storage tank, and the chemical feed system.

According to David Goodlett, assistant to Commissioner Bailey, further details were not yet available here as of Wednesday.

However, he said the funds would be released July 1, the start of the state's fiscal year.

The floating docks will replace the stationary docks now in use and improve docking facilities impaired when the lake level was raised.

Bailey has been working with former mayor Duncan Padgett and Mayor Noma Norm-

Over the coming two-year period, Slonaker said CDA will undertake projects in the Pahokee Neighborhood Strategic Area that include:

- A $300,000 construction program involving curbs, gutters and sidewalks over a ten-block area.

- Relocate four families living in dilapidated housing while the houses are torn down and new homes built.

- Acquiring land off Almaris Avenue between 24th and 26th streets for a low-income housing subdivision including sewers.

- Work for the longest period of time, he added.

In other business, the board:

- Heard a complaint from J.S. Atkins about cable television service and referred him to the community commission.

- Approved appointment of Dennis McIntosh to the police board to replace Joseph Bullock.

- Approved the appointment of former mayor Duncan Padgett to the city planning board to replace Joseph Bullock.

No commercial development has been approved, Slonaker said, and a request will be made to rezone the area west of Hardin Avenue and South Lake for commercial to residential.

Economic development funds are also available to CDA to disburse to projects providing the most people

5th St. improvements eyed

BELLE GLADE — City Commissioners will decide Thursday night whether to accept a bid of $100,000 to do sidewalk work to be done on Southwest Fifth Street, which is half again as high as anticipated.

The work, being done under the city's Community Development Program, was originally estimated to cost $100,000 but the city has recommended a postponement of any decision to give them a chance to make an additional review of the bid and compare it with bids on a similar project in a city on the east coast.

Community Development Director Remar Harvin endorsed the recommendation although he later admitted it was getting to be a critical factor in meeting the target date for beginning the work was Oct. 15 and the three week delay until the commissioners' next regular meeting would mean further delays.

After a motion by Commissioner Dorothy Walker to accept the recommendation failed for lack of a second, Commissioner Tom Altman noted that this was the second time the city had gone to bids and both times the sole bidder was Rubin Construction Co. of West Palm Beach, both times in the amount of $155,448.

City baseball clinic starts Monday

BELLE GLADE — A city-sponsored baseball clinic between the ages of six and 12 years will begin July 1, with morning sessions to be at Airport Park and afternoon sessions set for Lake Shore Park.

Softball program starts

BELLE GLADE — The City of Belle Glade started its Men's Soft-Pitch Softball Season on June 10. There are 13 teams participating, five returning from last year and eight making their debut.

On June 10, the All-Stars, with a total of 13 hits, beat L-8 Lettuce by a score of 13-5. Bonavita Chevrolet beat the Quaker Oats with a score of 19-18.

On June 11, EFE defeated Community Methodist Church 19-2. EFE compiled 19 hits. Also that night, South Bay Growers beat the Glades Merchants 11-1.

One of the best games this City Recreation Coordinator Jane Williams said Mike Underwood, manager of the Sporting Goods and physical education instructor at Glades Day School, has agreed to instruct the clinic, which will last from June 30 until July 11, with a day off for July Fourth.

Mrs. Williams said Underwood will be assisted by city recreational staff members. She said the participating youngsters will be divided into different age groups.

The first week will be dedicated to the fundamentals of baseball and the second week to games. The cost of the program depends on the number of participants, she said, but Underwood's wages will be $300 for the two weeks.

Mrs. Williams also noted the clinic was designed to end one day before the Pitch, Hit and Run contest the city is co-sponsoring with Burger King, "and I feel this would be a good beginning for our youth baseball program scheduled to begin in 1981."

South Bay Growers ended its game with the ten-run rule in the sixth inning Wednesday night. They beat Seminole Supply 11-1. Jesus Paez and Dionicio Rezes led Liceo Cuabano to their 16-1 win over the Glades Merchants by a margin of 4 for 4 and 4 for 3 respectively.

Four RBLs and a homerun by centerfielder Smith, assured the Glades Merchants of a victory against Community Methodist Church on June 19. EFE lost to L-8 Lettuce, 14-6 in the second game of the evening. Ron Ausley and F. Mirlez went 4 for 3 for L-8 Lettuce to assist with the victory.

Hicks

presented by three specialists treating Keith.

She said she has applied for Social Security and Medicaid but she didn't know when it would begin or how much it would bring in.

Friends didn't wait to begin showing their concern, however, and the Rev. Robert Atkins of First Baptist Church in Belle Glade, where the Hicks are members, said the congregation of the church began a Keith Hicks Fund at the Bank of Belle Glade the second week in May.

Rev. Atkins said there is approximately $2,500 in the fund now but he said he feels sure more donations would be received if more people understand the need and know the fund is there for donations.

He said more information on how to make the donations can be obtained by calling the church.

Mrs. Hicks said this week Keith's condition is much improved over what it was when he entered the hospital; that he can now move his arms and legs freely and he's now off the respirator, although he's still breathing through his tracheotomy.

"He's supposed to be taken out of ICU within the next couple of weeks," she said, "and while he'll still be in the hospital, we feel that's so much better than being at home because it's almost like he'll be coming home." She said she had no idea yet when Keith would be coming home.

Both Keith's parents had been working at the time he contracted the virus, his father as a welder at Duda Farms and his mother in the produce buying department of Safeway Stores, but his mother said she had been staying many nights at the hospital. She said she would return to work when Keith gets better.

Once Keith is recovered, Mrs. Hicks said she has little doubt he will do what he had planned before he entered the hospital.

This is to roll all at West Tech Center as an automotive mechanics student.

"That's all he's ever wanted to do," she said. "He went to Christian Day School, but he fooled around and didn't get his diploma. He went back to night school and got his diploma in December and we told him we'd get him through West Tech."

Curiosity seeker restraint needed

All people are excited by a fire and naturally curious as to the location, extent of damage and who or what it strikes.

But all too often, curiosity seekers who flock to the scene hamper, or at least complicate, the ability of fire fighters and other safety personnel who are trying to save property and possibly lives.

They do this in the most innocent of ways. Think, for example, of fire trucks, ambulances and patrol cars that have to dodge, pass or drive behind civilian vehicles trying to get to the scene. There is something to see there with a bystander.

So many times, the curious place themselves in dangerous positions by getting too close to the flame.

A case in point was a recent fire Thursday night, June 19, on U.S. 19 near Delray Beach.

A fire started in a building where many cans, drums and tanks, some filled with gasoline, and others containing diesel fuel and other petroleum products, were stored.

A number of explosions occurred, any one of which would have inflicted serious injury had it made contact with a bystander.

At the Thursday fire, firemen had to walk around people or tell them to get out of the way in an area that was already precarious, explosive if you will, if you consider late night, heavy traffic and dangerous substance on fire.

While we are not condemning anyone for their actions, we do call on all people in cases of fire or other emergencies, to yield to the good judgement and expertise of our local safety officials.

Castro scores on Carter

No one at the White House or the State Department wants to admit it, of course, but the truth is that Fidel Castro has been running up the score on a befuddled Jimmy Carter. Incredibly, Castro has succeeded, by manipulating what should have been an unqualified political disaster for Havana — the exodus of more than 112,000 Cuban refugees since April 20.

For most of the time since then, Castro has deftly controlled the play in his confrontation with Washington. He deliberately refused to permit diversion of any significant number of refugees to other nations in the Western Hemisphere. Just as deliberately, he has refused every effort to establish, in Cuba, a suitable American screening process that would have imposed a measure of order and legality. And finally, he exploited the refugee exodus to rid himself of assorted criminals and other social undesirables.

In the face of all this, Mr. Carter appeared ever more helpless and inept. His initial efforts to halt the "freedom flotilla" proved embarrassingly futile. Unable to stem the flow, the president proclaimed that the refugees would be welcomed with "an open heart and open arms." This declaration was followed shortly by another attempt to chase off the parade of boats from Miami by fining boat owners and impounding their vessels. Since enforcement of this policy began, more than 20,000 additional Cubans have arrived in Miami.

If the flood of refugees has now diminished to a trickle, it is primarily because Castro himself has turned off the spigot. Nevertheless, it is Jimmy Carter who winds up looking both callous and ineffectual.

But even at this late date, the president still has a chance to demonstrate his skill in dealing with the calculating Castro. International law is quite clear on the subject of Country A dumping its common criminals on the doorstep of Country B; the practice violates every accepted standard.

There being no international agency capable of enforcing this writ, Mr. Carter has every right to assume the responsibility himself.

According to the latest State Department count, 9,220 Cubans with criminal backgrounds have been discovered among the 112,534 refugees who have arrived to date. Of these, 67 are hardened hardened criminals guilty of facts which would constitute felonies in the United States. When screening is completed on all the Cubans, the number of hardened criminals may rise to double or triple the current figure.

Thus, even if the administration excuses the hungry kids who stole chickens and the unemployed adults convicted of petty black market dealings, there are likely to be as many as 2,000 Cubans ineligible for political asylum on any grounds.

Failing that, these criminals would do more than impose unwanted burdens or even dangers on the American people. It would also diminish further the already shrinking support for granting asylum to any political refugees, no matter how deserving.

So Mr. Carter should demand that Fidel Castro accept the return of hardened criminals. In the likely event that Carter ought to see to it that they end up in Cuba anyway, even if they have to be pushed through the gate at the Guantanamo Bay Naval Base.

Western unity needed

(Reprinted by permission of The Sacramento Bee)

The Western alliance, it is said, isn't what it used to be, but then (as has also been often said) it probably never was. Nonetheless, the current state of disarray — most obviously on sanctions against Iran and on responses to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan — reflect fundamental differences in perception and concern which, if they are not resolved, can only exacerbate problems on both sides of the Atlantic and lead the West into greater danger.

On this side of the water, Congress appears to act as if the only threat to national security is vaguely military, while, on the other, most members of the European Economic Community are behaving as if there were no serious threat from the Soviet Union at all. Similarly, this country continues to be willing to make wide cuts in its dependency on imported oil while the Europeans, necessarily much more dependent than we are, seem to be incapable of doing anything that might carry even remote dangers interrupting that supply or otherwise jeopardizing the economic prosperity that many of them now enjoy.

Obviously, both positions reflect domestic political considerations of the narrowest sort. Just as obviously, there cannot be much progress on one side of the water unless there is expectation of help from the other.

The fact is that security, whether "national" — or Western, cannot rest alone either on the great and often ill-considered use of defense dollars to which Congress now seems committed, or, on the other hand, on the pretense, prevalent through much of Western Europe, that the Russians are interested only in detente and trade and that Afghanistan (for example) means nothing. On both counts the alliance is hampered by an internationalism that is too collective and too self-seeking to be worthy of the name.

President Carter will have an opportunity to do a little fence-mending when he goes to the economic summit meeting in Venice this month, but the more fundamental problems and disagreements will take a lot more work both abroad and at home.

The point here is simple:

We are all going too much our own way, a fact against which any call for alliance and unity looks at least in part like a contradiction. It is still a case of having to hang together, let us all have it separately.

Voters have choice in election

1980 is shaping up as a banner election year. Not only are many important offices being decided, but many candidates are contending for the offices.

This competition is apparent all the way from the race for the presidency to many local races.

So you wonder that Ronnie Reagan and Jimmy Carter offer only a choice of lesser evils? Not true. All of us voters helped give the two men lists a position of strength going into the convention. Among those rejected this year were John Connally, Howard Baker, George Bush and Ted Kennedy.

Time is getting short for the local races, but more candidates can be expected to join some already crowded fields.

One of the most crowded races is the one for U.S. Senate. Many think incumbent Richard Stone is vulnerable.

There being no international agency capable of enforcing this writ, Mr. Carter has every right to assume the responsibility himself.

According to the latest State Department count,

9,220 Cubans with criminal backgrounds have been discovered among former Public Service Commission Member Paula Hawkins, Miami attorney Ellis Rubin, and State Senator John Ware.

There is a wide range of talents and personalities competing for Stone's job. There is a choice.

All Congressional seats in Florida are up for grabs. All odd-numbered state senate seats are up for re-election. Some familiar faces, such as Sen. George Price, Paul Lewis, will not be returning. The widely respected Lewis died, but his seat was not taken by another.

All members of the state house of representatives are up for re-election this year.

Voters will decide on the retention of six justices of the Florida Supreme Court, and two judges of the district court of appeals, Second Appellate Court District.

Circuit Court Judges from the 15th and 20th Circuits face voters again this year.

Six county judges in Palm Beach County and one each in Hendry and Glades Counties face re-election campaigns this year. The state attorney for the 15th Circuit is also up for re-election.

Some county commission and school board seats are up for election, and virtually all of the court house offices will have to be renewed this year.

It is grasping only at a straw to take comfort in the diversity evident at the OPEC meeting in Algiers. True, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates refused to go along, at least for now, with a new "benchmark" price of $32 a barrel for oil — $2 higher than the previous price. This is music to Western ears, but the fact remains that the other 11 exporters are determined to squeeze still more dollars out of our pockets.

The $2 price increase is expected to add two to three cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline in the United States and have a corresponding effect on utility bills and all other prices sensitive to the cost of fuel. We have no choice but to pay the higher prices as long as we choose to send abroad for tanks full of oil.

That choice is the joker in the deck, a card which cannot be played as long as the demand for oil by the importing nations remains as high or higher than OPEC's production.

Yemen, the Saudi oil minister, may have been thinking of that wild card when he warned the exporters that a worldwide oil glut by next fall could undermine the ability of OPEC to sustain its $32 a barrel price.

The OPEC ministers still hope to "unify" their prices at their next meeting in September. The ministers who are the most hawkish on prices may hope to unify them at even higher level than the present target. That goes from Saudi's $29 to $37 at the top. To do so in the face of falling demand would be difficult — unless OPEC takes the more drastic step of cutting back on production.

There are significant forces at play in the world energy market. Even discounting the temporary effects of recession, the inexorable upward curve in petroleum demand has been tempered. Europe and Japan are mounting major nuclear power programs. Although nuclear development remains virtually frozen in America, something resembling an energy policy is finally emerging in Congress.

OPEC oil is still great enough to be our overriding energy problem, a serious drain on our economy and a threat to peace. But the progress made so far in curbing that dependence should encourage our efforts. A year ago imported oil was meeting 42 percent of our requirements. Today the figure is 37 percent. I can go significantly lower. To the extent that it does, the less we'll have to worry about what OPEC does or doesn't decide to do.

— J.W. Cisneros LaBelle

U. S. depends on OPEC, OPEC depends on us

When a cartel is controlling the market in a vital commodity, any sign of a falling out among members of the cartel takes on the luster of good news. The failure of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to reach an unanimous agreement on a new price formula for oil is such a case.

It is grasping only at a straw to take comfort in the diversity evident at the OPEC meeting in Algiers. True, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates refused to go along, at least for now, with a new "benchmark" price of $32 a barrel for oil — $2 higher than the previous price. This is music to Western ears, but the fact remains that the other 11 exporters are determined to squeeze still more dollars out of our pockets.

The $2 price increase is expected to add two to three cents to the price of a gallon of gasoline in the United States and have a corresponding effect on utility bills and all other prices sensitive to the cost of fuel. We have no choice but to pay the higher prices as long as we choose to send abroad for tanks full of oil.

That choice is the joker

in the deck, a card which cannot be played as long as the demand for oil by the importing nations remains as high or higher than OPEC's production level.

Yemen, the Saudi oil minister, may have been thinking of that wild card

when he warned the export ers that a worldwide oil glut by next fall could undermine the ability of

OPEC to sustain its $32 a barrel price.

The OPEC ministers

still hope to "unify" their prices at their next meeting in September. The ministers who are the most hawkish on prices

may hope to unify them at even higher level than the present target.

That goes from Saudi's $29 to $37 at the top. To do so in the face of falling demand would be difficult — unless

OPEC takes the more drastic step of cutting back on production.

There are significant forces at play in the world energy market. Even discounting the temporary effects of recession, the inexorable upward curve

in petroleum demand has been tempered. Europe and Japan are mounting

major nuclear power programs. Although nuclear development

remains virtually frozen in America, something resembling an energy policy is finally emerging in Congress.

The dates to remember are Sept. 9 for the primary,

Oct. 7 for the second primary, and Nov. 4 for the general election.

Dear Editor:

I am very appreciative of your efforts and your articles. I have been trying to get something done about the road for two years.

I just recently contacted the head of the state road department through a messenger from Gov. Bob Graham's office. The response received no word about the schedule for resurfacing.

I hope you can get the citizens of this community to rally around a community-wide effort to get our message across.

We may say of angling as Dr. Boteler said of strawberries: "Doubtless God could have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did"; and so, if I might be judge, God never did make a more calm, quiet, innocent recreation than angling.

Wading for panfish

Whether you use a cane pole, ultra-light spin or spin casting tackle, light batcatting outfit or a fly rod your quarry is Bluegill. You will know this hard fighting, tasty fish can be caught by a variety of means. Bring copperhead, red breast, bluegill-bream, etc. No one knows how many names have been coined for this popular denizen who inhabits more waters in our nation than any other fish. It is still a Bluegill!

You can almost bet on it, that the first fish caught by an aspiring fisherman or fisherman (forgetting about that) was a bluegill. You can also bet that when it comes to eating this prize that experience too is not easily gained.

It used to be, at one time, that cane poles and bluegill were synonymous. Not anymore! Over the years a the desired results and consequently fish. Of course, while Bluegill are everywhere, they are not just anywhere. If you pay attention to the areas you are "using" and in many cases pinpoint the location of activity precisely.

Nowadays you water that admirable gills for the ultra-new breed of fishermen have developed new tackle and new tactics that add up to pure enjoyment on the water.

What is the best type of tackle?

First let us consider ultralight. This tackle is well suited to the task. A 3/4 or 1 pound gill will give as much of a fight on it as a larger bass on heavy tackle. The rods thenceforth selected are practically nothing. It is the same with the miniature reels. The reels are usually spooled with four or six spool test line, but many devotees go right down to two.

WHAT BETTER present than catching a big fish on your eighth birthday? That's what Frank Flippo of 405 W. Alvarez, Clewiston got. That's not all he got! Here he is shown with a 10 1/2 pound bass using a live shiner in the middle of the afternoon at Lake Miccosukee. He also got a 7 1/2 pound bass. Eat your heart out experts.

Leave the bug sitting where it landed for up to 20 seconds before moving it and then usually, ever so slightly. The bug must be watched every instant and then the fish may strike hard. It is surprising just how fast they can spit the bug when they find out it isn't the real McCoy.

Regardless of what type tackle you use in pursuit of this fish, practice, patience,ience and execution is the key to success.

The shellcracker is a live wormer by preference. Occasionally they are taken on artificial lures or popping bugs. Fishermen who take advantage of this "secret" action do not like to leave cover, generally speaking, if it can avoid doing so. Given this basic fact the fisherman will drop his lure or bait as close to cover as possible.

An exception here would be the "chippy-wink" action which is present the lure or bait will be placed over the beds. A batch of "chippy-winks" cause them to lose all sense of caution.

The ultimate condition for the flyrodder. The flyrodder should wade in clear water and a bluegill in clear water and if you are close enough to do this without spooking it you would be surprised just how long it will look over a live cricket or worm before striking. The same goes and to nibble. When casting small spinners or similar lures try retrieving very slowly. Just fast enough to make the spinner blade turn.

It is rare that they will "take" a lure that is retrieved fast or even at medium speed. Experienced flyrodders will be surprised just how long it will take a lure that is retrieved fast or even at medium speed. Experienced flyrodders will

Employers air complaints to state agency reps

Tallahassee — That Glades area employers want some changes made in the state laws covering unemployment compensation was one of the charges back to the employees.

The latest effort to get the word were two state employment service representatives in town last Thursday to meet with local businesses. They came, though, in response to letters and newspaper articles sent to Sen. Phil Lewis regarding the Glades area protest movement.

The protest, spearheaded by Roy Rausch, manager of the local Labor Force office, seeks legislative remedies to alleged abuses in state employment and benefit programs and advocates withholding quarterly payments to the state pending some action.

On hand for the meeting at City Hall were James Welch, field supervisor for Unemployment Compensation, and Janet Chapman, field supervisor for Employment Service.

For about two hours the field supervisors fielded questions and listened to business men relate specific instances such as part-time employees simultaneously collecting unemployment benefits; employees quitting jobs to go on extended vacations, and refusing preferred employment in order to receive unemployment benefits; employees fired for such causes as stealing or being drunk on the job, receiving unemployment compensation while still charged back to the employer.

Airing the charges were Milton Carpenter, head of an insurance firm; Frank Anderson, city finance director; and others.

Also attending were four men representing Unemployment Compensation Advisory Corp., a firm which represents employers on compensation cases.

Saying that "the law is complex unless you fully understand it," Welch told the group that there are "checks and balances to prevent abuses." The state doesn't have the funds or manpower to investigate every case but does make "periodic cross checks," he said.

"I'm here to answer any question regarding a claimant, you have to let us know," Welch said.

Rausch related an incident in which an employee's records were requested by the state in order to process a five-quarter period.

Rausch also protested a practice which he says allows workers to claim a specialty occupation, such as "motor racing-stripe painter," when in fact, he may be fully experienced in all phases of paint and body work.

Mrs. Chapman maintained that applicants are required to list their three most significant occupations and that the employment interview elicits additional information.

The session was more or less summed up by Carpenter who said, "This is what we want you to take back to your employer."

Tallahassee — what we are concerned about is how to forward to state legislators.

"I'm not against people who need the help, just people who abuse it," he said. "People who deserve it, but could get even more help than they do."

"Let's tell the government, the unemployment and community benefit program to terminate as soon as possible so no one who doesn't pay will be getting assistance."

"Nothing under the sun is ever accidental," G.E. Lessing,

Lions plan BBQ for Fourth

PAHOKEE — Lions Club members will hold their annual chicken barbecue during the city's July 4 Freedom Festival.

There will be two serving areas: one at the dike near the center of activities, and the other located at the designated Lions cookhouse. Take-out orders will also be filled.

Cost of a barbecue dinner will be $4 and include chicken, baked beans, slaw, and tea or coffee. No tickets will be sold in advance. Serving begins at 11 a.m. and will continue until all are served.

Services held

CLAUDE H. EVERETT Claude Henry Everett, 76, of US Hwy. # 27 South Bay, died June 16 in the Community Hospital of the Palm Beaches in West Palm Beach.

He was a native of Halifax, N.C. where he was born May 13, 1904. He came to the Glades area 48 years ago and had been a truck driver hauling farm produce in his active years.

Services include one daughter, Peggy Reid of San Stone, Va. He had many close friends in the South Bay area.

Graveside services were held at the Port Mayaca Cemetery on June 19 with the Rev. Jimmie L. Johnson, pastor of the Belle Glade Alliance Church, officiating. Interment followed. Mizzen Funeral Home of Belle Glade was in charge of arrangements.

OVERSEEING THE GLADES CENTER of Planned Parenthood is Judy Oakley who became interested in pregnancy counselling while earning her master's degree at the University of North Carolina and first worked as a volunteer counsellor with the organization.

Planned Parenthood deals with

Facts of life

By Alisa Dewing

While the moralists, the economists, the sociologists and the world-at-large debate the great issues of population growth, right-to-life and women's civil rights, one group goes on quietly and firmly dealing with the hottest problems: one-on-one basis.

Planned Parenthood. It deals with the facts of life, with the individuals whose lives have been affected here and now. The pregnant and unmarried teenage girl. The married woman and her husband seeking information about birth control. Education, counseling, medical help, and referral service to all those who seek it.

In Belle Glade the path leads to an old converted house at 141 NW 2nd St. where the Planned Parenthood Glades Center is located, presided over by Judy Oakley as director.

In two years this efficient young woman has steered the local Planned Parenthood program from a two-room second-floor office, where services were limited to providing education and counselling, to the present two-story quarters, big enough to provide clinical medical help as well.

After starting with the volunteer help of local physicians, the clinic is now served by two regularly-scheduled physicians, Drs. William Bartley and Pamela Gruber who also serve the county health department.

Here women of child-bearing age can receive gynecological examinations at about half the cost of a private physician's fee and purchase birth control devices or know the usual retail price. They can get an immediate answer to the question, "Am I pregnant? And help in solving what for some can be the even bigger question: What should I do now?"

And even though the clinical costs are nominal they are also provided free through federal funding to those who qualify.

But there is one requirement of all who seek aid

—Winning state recipes in 'Dairy Days' contest —

The top three winning recipes in the statewide "Dairy Days" recipe contest have been released by Arlene C. Jones, Palm Beach County extension home economics agent.

Winner in the "dessert" category at the grand cook-off was Mrs. Joan Diamond of Boca Raton whose recipe for "Joan's Fabulous Fruit Tarts" was published in the Herald Observer after she was named one of three county winners.

Also a winner in the county cook-off, conducted by the extension service, was Diane Williams of Belle Glade, whose recipe for "Broccoli Cream Almond Soup" was also published earlier.

As grand winner, Mrs. Diamond competed with 14 finalists selected from 1,000 participants in county contests, and was awarded $1,000 as overall winner plus $200 for her product.

The other state winners were Nancy Stalter of Holmes County and Jackie Nelson of Orange County whose prize-winning recipes appear below.

Mrs. Stalter's recipe "Lasagna Spinach Bundles" won in the "Casserole and Main Dish" category. Mrs. Nelson's "Tomatoes Stuffed with Summer and Zucchini Squash" was winner in the "Vegetable or Salad" category.

through Planned Parenthood and that is a 20-minute education and counselling session on birth control methods.

"It's unique," as described by Miss Oakley, in that it provides information that most women — and men also — don't even know is available.

The problem of the pregnant teenage girl is a familiar one at Planned Parenthood at a time that teenage pregnancy is reaching significant numbers throughout the country.

And a concomitant problem for the 15 to 24-year-old group is venereal disease, specifically gonorrhea, according to Miss Oakley.

A major factor in being able to help teenagers is that "by law we can see anyone of any age and no parental consent is needed," says Judy.

"We are not encouraging teenagers to learn birth control methods so they can be promiscuous," she points out. "The fact is that studies show that six to 12 months before a teenager goes to a clinic they have already been sexually active."

"Lots of adults don't want to think that way about their children," she adds.

On the other hand, some parents bring their younger daughters to Planned Parenthood to prevent pregnancy, she says.

The seriousness of teenage pregnancies apparently cannot be overstated in that they present a danger both to the young mother and the child.

The rate of premature and low-weight babies is high among teenage mothers with the attendant risk of mental retardation for low-weight babies, she points out.

Toxemia is an added threat for the adolescent mother and for girls 15 and younger, whose reproductive organs have not matured, there is the added likelihood of a scarred cervix leading to future miscarriages.

The philosophy of Planned Parenthood is that no woman should either have to have an abortion or bear an unwanted child, when birth control are so readily available.

But a part of the organization's counselling is helping the pregnant woman come to a decision about what she wants to do.

Planned Parenthood staff members do not arrange abortions. "If a woman is firm in her decision, we will discuss the various aspects, including the religious, and we will provide referrals but she must make the phone call," explains Miss Oakley.

Also, the agency can also help the mother-to-be place an unwanted child for adoption.

The primary goal of the Glades agency at this time is to reach more members of the surrounding communities.

Although the weekly clinics serve about 50 women a month in pregnancy test and physical examinations,

"there are some 2,500 women whose needs are not being met in the area from Clewiston to South Bay to Pahokee — the area we serve," says Judy.

Although most women who come to Planned Parenthood learn of it by word-of-mouth through friends, there is an ongoing community awareness campaign.

Miss Oakley is an enthusiastic speaker to any group willing to listen, be it youth groups, women's clubs or civic organizations.

And if there is a need to serve more people, there is also a need for more volunteer help.

Assisting Judy Oakley on the center's staff are Lolly Castro, who is bilingual and helps coordinate the various activities, and LaVerne Martin, who serves as receptionist.

Four volunteers, however, conduct the clinical interviews and if more can be recruited, the community outreach program can be extended both to spread the message and raise funds to expand services.

As an affiliate of Planned Parenthood Federation of America, Inc., the local center is partially funded by Title XX funds, augmented by foundation grants, donations, and patient fees.

The volunteers also include the men and women who serve on the local advisory committee and the county board of directors.

Included among them are Ruth Gedwirth and LaVoy Taylor, who serve on both governing bodies, and those who serve only on the advisory committee: Mrs. Elijah Baines of Pahokee; Margaret Mosley, Betty Thiebaud, Shirley Hart, Jan Hart, the Rev. Leon Camel, Jr., Thomas Montgomery, Dr. Naomi Conley, Betty Koresen and Trisha Blash, all of Belle Glade, and H.W. Berryman, a former Belle Glade resident now living in West Palm Beach.

PREGNANCY testing is quick, 98 percent efficient and low-cost at the center. It takes two minutes using a UCG slide and clients are charged $1 for the service.

Garden club to host fall district meeting

BELLE GLADE — A preview of the fall program was given Belle Glade Garden Club members at a luncheon recently hosted by Mrs. D.G. Herring closing the winter's activities.

According to Mrs. S.M. McAllister, president, the highlight of the forthcoming year will be the meeting of October garden clubs to be held here.

The Garden Club will be host to the semi-annual event to be attended by several hundred garden club members.

A luncheon and program are planned for Oct. 15 at the Elks Club, with planning in the hands of various committees.

Mrs. McAllister also announced plans for a club tour of the Tiger Creek Nature Reserve near Lake Okeechobee.

The club contributed two acres to the preserve and members were told that a map indicating the acres each club donated will be displayed in the headquarters to be built at the preserve.

Mrs. McAllister will be hostess at the September meeting when club members reconvene.

Mrs. Beta Markham has been named Arbor Day chairwoman for the fall club meetings.

Other club activities planned for the January observance.

Members attending the June meeting were Mrs. McAllister, Mrs. Bracken, Mrs. Russell Buss, Mrs. Fred Farmer, Mrs. Richard Hodges, Mrs. Mary McLendon, Mrs. Bertha Johnson, Mrs. Lonnie Warren, Mrs. A.D. Acree, Mrs. George Hudspeth, Mrs. E.J. Schoepel, Mrs. Lucille January, Mrs. Edith Bridges, Mrs. Sarah Plunkett, Mrs. Marie Whitfield, Mrs. Addie Jones, Mrs. Ed Zygier, Mrs. Mary Zywicki, Mrs. Virginia Buss, and Mrs. Herring.

Winner in the "dessert" category at the grand cook-off was Mrs. Joan Diamond of Boca Raton whose recipe for "Joan's Fabulous Fruit Tarts" was published in the Herald Observer after she was named one of three county winners.

Also a winner in the county cook-off, conducted by the extension service, was Diane Williams of Belle Glade, whose recipe for "Broccoli Cream Almond Soup" was also published earlier.

1 lb. yellow squash      ¼ cup Parmesan cheese
1 lb. zucchini squash      6 tomatoes
2 tsp. oil      1 onion
1 garlic clove      2 Tbsp. olive oil
2 lbs. butter      1 cup heavy cream
½ cup Cheddar cheese, grated      Pepper to taste

Grate both squash and spread in colander. Sprinkle salt on squash and toss. Drain for 30 minutes. Dry on towel to remove moisture.

Cut tops off tomatoes and remove inside pulp. Salt and pepper and brush with oil. Bake in preheated oven 325 degrees for 10 minutes, cut side up. After baking, turn tomatoes over to drain.

Mince onion and garlic and saute in oil and butter. Stir in squash. Cook and stir for two minutes. Add cream. Salt and pepper to taste. Cook mixture until cream is absorbed. Remove from heat. Stir in Cheddar cheese and one-quarter of the Parmesan cheese.

Spoon mixture into tomatoes and mound. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Place under broiler 3-5 minutes until brown. Serves 4.

FROM THE GRAPEVINE

By BRENDA BUNTING

I've come to the conclusion that the world is made up of two distinct classes of people. (And all this time you thought there were three.)

They consist of the Doers and the Watch-um Doers. You can guess to what group I belong:

After spending an enlightening weekend with some friends a while back, it was brought home to me painfully, to which of the two groups I belonged.

When I got up at 9 a.m., she had been up since 6:30 a.m. I stumbled out of bed and groped for the bathroom only to be blinded momentarily by the shining chrome and the light reflecting off the sparkling fixtures. Seems my friend makes sure she is the last one to take a bath at night so she can be the first, sno-bowl the stool and rinse out the sink before retiring for the night.

I reach for my toothbrush and then regret the thought. I just couldn't spit toothpaste in that nice clean sink.

Oh, for a cup of coffee! When I get to the kitchen she is putting the finishing touches on a chocolate cake she just baked for the church rummage sale.

Would I care for some breakfast? There's homemade biscuits, gravy, bacon and eggs. Ugh! Just coffee please.

She is already dressed for the day but I don't plan to budge out of my housecoat till a decent hour, at least 11 a.m.

I can't stand all that cheerful singing so I've decided to sneak back to bed for a few more winks. Lo and behold, the bed is made and my dirty clothes are no longer lying by the bed. I cautiously pull back the top cover, and just as I suspected, even the sheets are smooth and unrumpled. Guess that settles that. I'm up for the day.

Well, since that what I like to do today! she asks. Go back to bed, me thinks. Doing something else like as a working woman don't normally get to do? (What could she possibly live in mind?)

The lunch is packed and the bicycles stand waiting. A three-mile ride to the park with a 15 m.p.h. wind blowing us in the face. Oh, no! I'll never make it.

"Is this fun?" she chirps. Ya, fun. (pant, pant.)

Down the hill and whiz into the park. We make it! I fling myself onto the grass, never to move again. No, I don't want to look at the birds. Nor do I care to eat the scrumptious lunch. I'm too tired. I may never eat again, ride a bicycle again, or for that matter, want to see her again.

By the time the weekend is over, the depression runs deep. She has cleaned, baked, invented, created and worked her way through all my patience. This Watch-em Doer is ready to go home...and sleep and sleep.....

THE CIVITAN CLUB of Belle Glade will be sponsoring four local students at a Youth Citizenship Seminar at Florida Southern College in Lakeland.

Four local students to attend seminar

BELLE GLADE — The Belle Glade Civitan Club is sponsoring four local youths at a special Youth Citizenship Seminar, July 13-16 at Florida Southern College in Lakeland.

Sponsored annually by the Civitan Club of Florida, Glades Central Community Schools, Mrs. Myrtle Clayton, youth committee chairperson, Fredy Alvarez, and Mary Kirchman two of the students planning to attend the seminar and out-going Civitan President John Hooker.

Clayton said this is the first time the local Civitan Club has sponsored local students at the seminar.

Mrs. Myrtle Clayton, chairperson of the youth committee, said she will be on campus for the seminar.

Mrs. Clayton said the students will participate in citizenship workshops, study sessions and various recreational activities.

"The students were recommended for the special seminar by the guidance counselors at Glades Central and Christian Day School," Mrs. Clayton said.

Alvarez, a senior at Christian Day School, is a member of the basketball and tennis teams. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francisco Alvarez. Davis, is the son of Mrs. Grace M. Bishop.

Miss Kight, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kight. She is a member of the Glades Central Student Council and an honor student.

Miss Kirchman, an eleventh grader at Glade Central is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Kirchman, members of the National Honor Society and the Science Club.

Kenneth Lutz, a member of the Civitan Club will attend the seminar along with the local student representatives.

Hospital

In another area of business, Lennon told the trustees another goal had not been met in connection with the beginning of Advanced Life Support (ALS) ambulance service because a county-wide communications system "won't work".

Pressure was applied to the hospital a year ago, partially by Palm Beach County Medical Services Director Paul Mellini, Lennon recalled, to begin providing ALS rather than Basic Life Support (BLS) service when being provided by Terry Moss.

The trustees, after several meetings which included presentations by Mellini and two other ambulance service operators, decided to provide ALS as soon as a communications net had been provided by the county. They decided however, to begin providing their own service within-hospital boundaries.

The trustees also hired, in December, an emergency services director for the hospital, who would provide supervision to paramedics in the field from his post at the hospital. Lennon said Tuesday the hospital has already purchased the communications equipment it needs, including telemetry equipment, to go into ALS operation, and the personnel are available.

The holdup now, he said, is that the complicated radio and telephone network which Mellini said would be in operation by June 15 still isn't working. Lennon said he has attended three meetings in which explanations were offered but there is still no firm date by which operations are expected to begin.

In other business, the trustees:

- Approved the recommended appointment of three new physicians to the hospital staff. Dr. Hugo Hernandez, a urologist, was appointed as an associate staff member to take a seat on the permanent staff next year, while Dr. Joseph R. P. Hurts and Dr. Wesley King both of Miami were appointed to the emergency room staff, where they'll fill in on weekends.
- Learned that Charles Gadsden, an assistant dietitian, had been chosen Employee of the Year from among the Employees of the Month over the past year.

Lennon said Gadsden and his wife were being treated at an expense-paid weekend at Port St. Lucie. He said Gadsden was chosen for his all-around qualities as an employee.
